RE: Opinion Editorials on Indoor Air Quality and Junk Science

As you know, we have been working with Dr. Fred Singer and Dr. Dwight Lee, who have authored articles on junk science and indoor air quality (IAQ), respectively. Attached you will find copies of the junk science and IAQ articles which have been approved by Drs. Singer and Lee. You will also find attached copies of biographies for Drs. Singer and Lee. We discussed with Dr. Singer Ellen's suggestion for the junk science article to have a more personal introduction, however he is adamant that this would not be his style. Please review the articles and let us know as soon as possible whether you have any comments or questions about them.

We are planning to send to you by close of business today draft copies of three additional articles that are being prepared on the following topics:

- o the economic impact of excessive regulations and junk science -- based on my conversation with Tina regarding the hearings in California;
- o the effect of government regulations on business, and
- o civil/personal liberties.
