Ari @ KKR wants to have a brief Petraeus prep call tomorrow, if possible. Does that work for you? If so, do you have a preference on any of the time slots below?

Dear Darren,

Trust this note finds you well, and I hope that life has improved since early last year with the addition of David and other staffing enhancements.

I believe Treasurer Schmidt reached out to you and David about a breakfast on Wednesday, April 30th, from 7:30-8:45am CST, to introduce you both to General David Petraeus (hopefully this sounds familiar). As background, before joining our firm as Chairman of the KKR Global Institute, Gen. Petraeus was Director of the CIA and before that spent 37 years in the military, most recently serving as commander of coalition forces in Afghanistan and Iraq as well as commander of the U.S. Central Command. He is a very interesting person and I am certain both you and David will enjoy the discussion.

In advance of this visit at the end of the month, I wanted to ask if we could arrange a 20-30 minute call. The agenda would be for me to provide any information that might be useful for the Petraeus meeting, provide you with any updates on KKR that might be helpful and hopefully learn a little more about some of the things you are focusing on these days. Time flies, of course, and it's been about 1 year since we have spoken and it would also be helpful for me to get your thoughts, especially so I can be a little more current in the run up to bringing Gen. Petraeus. I have certainly followed things in the press and website but would really value your insights.

If that would be acceptable, would you have some time on April 9, 10, 11, 15 (morning), 16 or 17? I am generally open on those days.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Best,
Ari
